

The images in this article are derivative works of separately copyrighted artwork or sculpture.

They are, therefore, treated here as non-free and each use within an article must satisfy the non-free content criteria.

Re-users of this content, in addition to needing a fair use or similar legal claim to use the depiction of the copyrighted work, must also respect the rights of the derivative author by complying with the following terms:

I, the copyright holder of this work, hereby release it into the public domain. This applies worldwide.

If this is not legally possible:

I grant any entity the right to use this work for any purpose, without any conditions, unless such conditions are required by law.

If an image is of an artwork on display in a public location in a jurisdiction that permits freedom of panorama (such as the UK), then please remove `{{Photo of art}}` tag, placing the photographers 'free' license in this section of the media description page

Some images are two-dimensional representation of copyrighted sculptures, statues or any other three-dimensional works of art. As such it is a derivative work of art, and per US Copyright Act of 1976, § 106\(2\) whoever holds copyright of the original has the exclusive right to authorize derivative works.

Per § 107 it is believed that reproduction for criticism, comment, teaching and scholarship constitutes fair use and does not infringe copyright.

It is believed that the use of a picture

- to illustrate the three-dimensional work of art in question,
- to discuss the artistic genre or technique of the work of art
- or to discuss the artist or the school to which the artist belongs
- on the English-language LosAltosPolitico.com, hosted on servers in the United States, qualifies as fair use under United States copyright law. Any other uses of this image might be copyright infringement
